

The furious octopus

One day the Simpson family, Mr Simpson, Mrs Simpson, and the two kids Banana and Delbert, decided to go to Italy. They didn't want to go by plane, so they went by car. The trip to Italy was very long and boring, so when they arrived, they were really happy.

On the first day they went for a long walk on the beach, where they saw a lot of visitors, sandcastles, sand toys and coconut palms. On the way back they bought a refreshing drink at the beach vendor's. The second day they went to the pool. The family was dressed in their bikinis, swim trunks and swimsuits. They grabbed some beach towels and went to the pool. Then they sat down on some deck chairs and Mrs Simpson gave all of them some sun cream. The sun was out and it was very hot so they went into the pool.

On the third day they decided to go to the beach and swim in the ocean. They took a lot of things with them: a beach ball, a pair of sunglasses, some goggles, a hat, flip flops and a float. They went to some deck chairs under a beach umbrella because it was very hot again. In the ocean they saw a lot of surfboards and canoes. After a while the family decided to go into the ocean. They swam out far and they wanted to go even further but something stopped them. It was a big furious octopus which had ink all over itself. The family wanted to be nice and shook one of its arms. It didn't react, so they shook its other arms. The big octopus got really furious and he covered all of them in black ink. They swam back as fast as they could and washed the ink off.